MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

For more than 60 years, these Awards have recognised and celebrated those Victorians that devote their time and energy for the benefit of our community.

Their different achievements reflect the diversity of our state and I'm particularly pleased to see a growing number of women, First Peoples and Victorians from many different cultural backgrounds being nominated.

Congratulations to all nominees and the best of luck to those progressing to the national Awards.

Your service to the Victorian community makes us a stronger, wiser and more welcoming state for all.

Professor the Honourable Margaret Gardner AC
Governor of Victoria

MESSAGE FROM THE PREMIER

Every Victorian plays their part in making our state a stronger, fairer, better place, but there are some that really go the extra mile.

The Victorian Australian of the Year Awards celebrate our community leaders – those who speak up for the voiceless, protect what they love, and go above and beyond to serve their communities.

You represent the very best of our state and challenge every Victorian to contribute in their own way.

Tonight we celebrate our Victorian Australian of the Year nominees for their dedication, selflessness and compassion.

Thank you for everything you do. Congratulations on your nomination, and best of luck for the national awards.

Honourable Jacinta Allan MP
Premier of Victoria

20 24

JANINE MOHAMED

Indigenous health leader

Janine Mohamed is an exceptional leader, even if she sometimes jokes about being an 'accidental CEO'. In her nearly five years leading the Lowitja Institute in Melbourne, and before that as CEO of the Congress of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Nurses and Midwives, she has created important platforms for Indigenous peoples and championed culturally safe health care.

A Narungga Kurna woman, Janine initially studied nursing at the University of South Australia, where she's now an Adjunct Professor and a celebrated Alumni of the Year.

For the next 25 years, she worked in nursing, health policy and research in the Indigenous Community Controlled Health sector. In 2020, she was awarded an honorary doctorate in nursing by Edith Cowan University.

Janine is committed to dismantling racism, expanding opportunities for the Indigenous health workforce, and to closing the gap in Indigenous health outcomes through the systemic integration of cultural safety.

ANTHONY RINAUDO AM

Reforestation pioneer, World Vision Australia

Anthony Rinaudo AM believes that when you work with nature, miracles are possible. In 40 years, his 'farmer-managed natural regeneration' (FMNR) technique has contributed to the restoration of millions of hectares of degraded land in at least 29 countries across Africa and Asia.

With FMNR, farmers actively manage regrowth from living stumps, roots and seedlings in badly degraded land.

Anthony hit on the idea in the 1980s after a disappointing tree-planting project in Niger. He and 12 local farmers instead nurtured the straggly plants that remained. It inspired a farmer-led greening movement accounting for 200 million trees regenerated on five million hectares of farmland over a twenty-year period.

By partnering with World Vision, Anthony aims to eventually regenerate one billion hectares of land. The biggest change he can make, he says, is the restoration of hope.

In 2019, he was awarded an Order of Australia for services to conservation.

ANDREW-JAMES TCHEN

Social worker and founder,
Girraway Ganyi Consultancy

Andrew-James (AJ) Tchen, who has Wiradjuri and Wotjobaluk heritage, is respected across the community for his work in mental health training, reconciliation and Aboriginal cultural mentoring programs.

He set up his Girraway Ganyi Consultancy in 2008 with a vision to inspire cultural change and mental health leaders. In 2020, AJ began the YarninBlack podcast and Black Yarns YouTube channel for Aboriginal people to promote storytelling as a way to share truth.

Additionally, AJ runs cultural awareness training for many organisations and mentors Indigenous students at some of Victoria's independent schools. He has also delivered over 790 mental health first aid courses to over 8400 participants nation-wide.

AJ shares his own story about mental ill health and Stolen Generation issues, emphasising how recent this history is for contemporary Aboriginal people.

A qualified nurse and careers counsellor, AJ was named 2021 Aboriginal Social Worker of the Year by the Australian Association of Social Workers.

MICHAEL TISBURY AFSM

Firefighter, anti-PFAS campaigner

Michael Tisbury AFSM has a saying: Firefighters never give up. For more than a decade he's worked to expose the dangers of PFAS contamination for firefighters, which is linked to cancer and other conditions.

As a union delegate, it took him three exhausting years to force a Victorian parliamentary inquiry in 2014 into PFAS chemicals in fire-fighting foam.

He also devised a way to decontaminate firetrucks and, remarkably, to reduce levels of these dangerous 'forever chemicals' in people's blood.

Michael's 'aha' moment was in 2016, after blood tests showed he had higher PFAS levels than his colleagues. He wondered if his colleagues had given blood/plasma. He then developed a clinical trial, which confirmed donating plasma could reduce PFAS levels by 30 per cent in a year.

In 2019, Michael was awarded an Australian Fire Service Medal for his efforts. He is now Assistant Chief Fire Officer at Fire Rescue Victoria.

LYN GEER

Volunteer

Lyn Geer believes that while one person cannot help everyone, everyone can help someone.

As a volunteer for more than two decades, Lyn has put this belief into practice. She's worked for numerous not-for-profits including the Banksia Palliative Care Service, The Smith Family, VIEW Clubs of Australia and Leith Park Retirement Village.

Lyn's compassion, energy and commitment has improved the lives of hundreds of people in need – whether that person is a child from a disadvantaged family, a neighbour in need or a stranger grappling with terminal illness.

Volunteering in palliative care has taught Lyn to cherish each day, listen deeply to others and to value life as a precious gift.

Lyn has gone above and beyond the expectations of volunteers to make a difference in the lives of others. In 2015, she was a highly commended nominee for the Dame Elisabeth Murdoch Award for her work with The Smith Family.

GLENYS OOGJES

Animal justice advocate

Glenys Oogjes started work at Animals Australia in 1983 as its sole employee. She is now CEO of the organisation, which is one of Australia's most effective animal advocacy groups, and has been putting animal welfare on government and community agendas for four decades.

Glenys has been a quiet force behind historic changes in Australian animal policy, including some of our current animal protection laws. She was one of the instigators behind the Australian Animal Welfare Strategy – first endorsed in 2004 – and the more recent Australian Animal Welfare Standards for Poultry, which will see battery cages for egg-laying hens phased out across the country.

Even when faced with distressing evidence or vehement opposition, Glenys remains a calm bulwark for animal justice.

Highly regarded internationally, Glenys is also a board member of the World Federation for Animals and works with other leaders to build a kinder world on a global scale.

DAPHNE PROIETTO OAM

Piano teacher and pioneer of Music Thera-play

Daphne Proietto OAM has been teaching the joy of music to neurodivergent children for decades – for free.

The Melbourne piano teacher started giving lessons to students with diverse learning needs and disabilities at her home in 2000. She didn't charge for the sessions and produced amazing outcomes, especially for children with autism.

After she was featured on a 60 Minutes program in 2015, Daphne was inundated by requests to teach. A group of parents realised that one person couldn't possibly answer the demand, so they started the Keys of Life Foundation.

Keys of Life trains music teachers in Daphne's approach to teaching – now known as 'Music Thera-play' – so more children could have a quality music education. Besides running courses for teachers, the foundation puts on concerts and runs social music classes.

Daphne was awarded a Pride of Australia Medal in 2015 and in 2022 she won a Westfield Local Hero grant.

GUOSHENG YANG CHEN

Life-long educator at RMIT University

Guosheng Yang Chen is a committed life-long educator who's taught hundreds of local and overseas students.

A renowned leader in the Australian Chinese community, Guosheng has lived in Australia for 40 years. She's dedicated much of this time to building multilingual and multicultural education throughout the country.

When Guosheng joined RMIT in 1993 she developed the language department, then led the development of four national TAFE language curricula (Chinese, Japanese, Indonesian and Thai). This strengthened the foundation for language and cultural education in Australia today.

Guosheng also led extensive community language teacher training programs and consulted with various strategic advisory groups.

Since retiring, Guosheng has continued to support community and multicultural events across the state and is director of the Museum of Chinese Australian History

In 2015, she was awarded the prestigious Ralph McIntosh Medal for over two decades of outstanding service to students and leadership in language and culture education.

BHAKTA BHADUR
BHATTARAI

Registered nurse and founder,
Albury Wodonga Multicultural
Community Events Inc

Better known as Durga, Bhakta Bahadur Bhattarai's selfless actions are a constant source of care and connection among Wodonga's multicultural community.

Born and raised in a Bhutanese refugee camp in Nepal, Durga came to Australia with his family in 2012. He completed high school and then trained as a pharmacy assistant and registered nurse.

Feeling lonely and isolated during his studies, Durga founded the Albury Wodonga Multicultural Community Events Inc in 2014. The organisation advocates for and showcases multicultural communities and organises help during difficult times.

On top of his work as a nurse, Durga supplied homemade masks to the elderly and emergency food relief during the COVID-19 lockdowns. He also arranged multiple community wellbeing and entertainment programs, and has raised thousands of dollars for sick young people and disability support.

Among several awards recognising his contributions, Durga was awarded the Meritorious Service Award from the Government of Victoria in 2019.

JAYDEN SHERIDAN

Founder, Gnarly Neighbours

Jayden Sheridan wanted to give his son better opportunities than he had.

Seymour's 'king of the kids' has come a long way from a troubled childhood. As a teenager, Jayden experienced homelessness and substance abuse - but the skateboard park was always a safe place to escape to.

When he discovered he was going to be a father at just 17, Jayden realised things needed to change.

In 2021, Jayden started Gnarly Neighbours, a not-for-profit youth group in Seymour. The group gives free skateboarding lessons and provides creative workshops to young people. Its aim is to foster community building, inspire creativity and individuality and encourage safe risk-taking behaviour.

The group also has its own streetwear label, which children can get involved with to learn about design.

Jayden was chosen as one of ABC Heywire's 2022 Trailblazers. He's now formalising his workshops so they can be run in other disadvantaged rural towns.

ASHLEIGH
STREETER-JONES

Youth and gender equality advocate and founder, Raise Our Voice Australia

Ashleigh Streeter-Jones is an internationally recognised advocate for youth and gender equality. Her work as a speaker, writer, advisor and activist has shaped domestic, national and international conversations.

Involved in youth advocacy and campaigns since she was a teenager, Ashleigh focuses on closing societal gaps, especially for women and young people from marginalised backgrounds. She has been an integral part of multiple successful campaigns, including Girls Take Over Parliament.

In 2020, Ashleigh founded Raise Our Voice Australia, a volunteer-run social enterprise that is amplifying the voices of young women and gender diverse people in politics and policy. The organisation runs training and campaigns, conducts research on gender equality and fosters communities to advocate for and create positive change.

Forbes chose Ashleigh as one of the 30 Under 30 in 2018. She is also a Global Shaper, an initiative of the World Economic Forum that is inspiring young people under 30 to address local, regional and global challenges.

CHARLOTTE YOUNG

Youth and disability advocate

Charlotte Young is an advocate and emerging leader whose goal is to build an Australia that truly reflects the rights and diversity of our communities.

The co-founder and president of the Australian National University Auslan Club, Charlotte uses her experience as a person with hearing loss to help drive change. The dancer and full-time university student works as an inclusivity consultant to national and international organisations including the Australian Government, Children and Young People with Disability Australia, UNICEF and the U.S. Embassy.

Charlotte is a fellow with the Clinton Global Initiative University, advocating for young people with disability in the justice system.

As an executive member in the Global Network of Young People with Disability, and United Nations delegate, she provides sustainable and intersectional advocacy on an international scale. She also works on initiatives and campaigns, including the National Youth Disability Summit, and is a board director at Burgmann College.

AHMED JAMAL ELSHEIKH

Anti-racism advocate and founder, Reflect Forward

Ahmed Jamal (or Jamal) Elsheikh is a Sudanese Australian who believes sport – and kindness – can transform the lives of young people and unify communities.

When Jamal was a child, he experienced a violent racist attack. The kindness of a stranger saved his life – and sport and athlete role models helped him recover from the experience. This is when he understood the powerful influence that athletes and sport could have on school-aged children.

Today, innovator Jamal fights racism with over 23,000 Victorian students through his award-winning, sports-based racial literacy program, Reflect Forward. The program uses the influence of sports and athletes at a local, national and international level to help students to be anti-racism champions and say no to racism in schools, sports and communities.

Jamal has been recognised for his achievements several times, including with the (Victorian) ABC Kindness Hero in 2020. He was selected as a Churchill Fellow in 2022.

KERRY LONGMUIR

Foster mum

Kerry Longmuir and her husband Stephen have provided care and love for more than 400 children over the last 39 years. Kerry is the proud foster mum of babies, children and teenagers in need – regardless of background, disability, race, religion or gender.

Kerry, who has two biological adult children, was inspired to become a carer after reading a flyer about fostering at a local community fair. After the first experience was a success she continued – sometimes looking after up to seven children at a time.

The couple has continued to foster children even after Stephen was badly injured in a work accident a decade ago.

Now in her 70s, Kerry's days can include nursing babies through drug withdrawal, doing school drop-offs and taking kids to sports and community events. Some children only stay for a night, while others have stayed for their entire childhoods. Many still come back to visit.

DANIEL MANCUSO AND LUKE MANCUSO

Advocates against family violence and co-founders, YiaYia Next Door

Daniel and Luke Mancuso turned an unlikely friendship with their kind neighbour into a social enterprise.

The brothers have known 'Yiayia', the Greek grandmother next door, for most of their lives. It was Yiayia who called for help when she heard their mother scream the night she was murdered by her ex-husband. And it was Yiayia who kept them fed afterwards, passing home-cooked Greek dishes over the fence.

When Daniel and Luke started the social media channel YiaYia Next Door to celebrate their relationship with Yiayia, they didn't expect its message of neighbourly love to resonate as strongly as it did.

Today, YiaYia Next Door is an organisation that encourages people to build communities where everyone feels safe, connected and cared for. It advocates for 'love thy neighbour' as a powerful antidote to violence.

The brothers also fundraise through the organisation for charities and services that support families experiencing violence.

BETUL TUNA

Co-founder, Point of Difference Studio

Betul Tuna is deeply committed to humanitarian and community causes. The Turkish Muslim-Australian – who was born, raised and lives on Yorta Yorta Country – has been instrumental in supporting local and international communities during emergencies and making the district a safe, supportive place.

During the 2022 floods in her local community and the 2023 earthquake in Turkey, Betul helped ensure affected communities received necessary supplies and access to essential services.

She also coordinated the design and implementation of a state-funded program that aims to prevent violence against women in migrant and refugee communities and created a bold and successful campaign against female genital mutilation.

Betul co-founded the 'Hijack'd' mobile food van, which provides culturally appropriate food and creates jobs for local young people. She also co-founded the Point of Difference Studio which champions arts, culture and identity and advocates for culturally safe, respectful and accessible environments in regional Victoria.

THANK YOU TO OUR PARTNERS

* Names of recipients in the Honour Roll are a reflection of the time they received the Award.

THE TROPHIES

The Australian National University (ANU) is committed to better outcomes for our community, the environment, our nation and the world. As the national university, we feel immensely privileged to be the exclusive cultural partner of the 2024 Australian of the Year Awards, recognising the outstanding service to the community that many Australians make.

The trophies for the 2024 Australian of the Year Awards are the stunning result of a collaborative effort by staff and students of the Glass Workshop in the ANU School of Art & Design.

The geometric nature of the design aims to represent the multiple facets that have shaped Australian society, embodying a nation that is confident in its leadership, contemporary in its outlook and distinguished by its diverse community. The facets also capture the points of the Southern Cross, the star of federation, and are rendered in a brilliant blue symbolising the Australian sky.

Each award has been created through a process of cast glass, and meticulously ground and polished by hand. The awards have been a wonderful project for students to apply their creative and technical skills to complete a professional commission.

ANU School of Music students have also contributed theme music for the Australian of the Year Awards, which will be used throughout the state and territory announcements.
